Historical Note

The bishops of the United States made the decision to found The Catholic University of America on December 2, 1884. A month later, during the first meeting of the committee to which the bishops had delegated the work of organization, the University was named. Pope Leo XIII, who was a source of encouragement from the beginning, gave formal approbation to the project on April 10, 1887. Immediately thereafter, civil incorporation in the District of Columbia was obtained. Later in the year, the Pope named John Joseph Keane, bishop of Richmond, to be the first rector. Papal approval of the first constitution of the University was given on March 7, 1889, and the University was opened on the following November 13.

At the time, the modern American university was still in its infancy. The Johns Hopkins University in 1876 had been the first in the country to dedicate itself not only to the preservation of learning and teaching, as American institutions had been doing since the foundation of Harvard College on an English model in 1636, but also to the advancement of knowledge through research in the manner of the Prussian universities of the 19th century. Engagement in research and the training of graduate students to carry it out were to become the hallmarks of university status. By developing in this pattern, The Catholic University of America became the principal channel through which the modern university movement entered the American Catholic community. In 1900, Catholic University was among the 14 institutions offering instruction for the doctorate that formed the Association of American Universities.

Only in 1904 were undergraduate programs added to the offerings of the University, although some undergraduate instruction had been offered earlier to candidates for graduate and professional degrees. Undergraduate students now comprise more than 50% of the annual enrollment.

Today, the University includes 12 schools, all of which offer graduate and/or professional degrees. Ten schools — architecture and planning; arts and sciences; business; engineering; music, drama, and art; nursing; philosophy; professional studies; social service; and theology and religious studies — award undergraduate degrees. Catholic University is the only American university with ecclesiastical faculties granting canonical degrees in canon law, philosophy, and theology.

Catholic University's academic offerings are organized in accord with the official mission statement of the University approved by the Board of Trustees on December 12, 2006:

As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation, and the world.

Joseph L. Carlini, B.S.M.E. 1984
Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa

When Catholic University's Board of Trustees in 2017 made changes to provide greater lay participation in University governance, the best and clearest choice to lead its efforts was Joe Carlini, B.S.M.E. 1984.

Likewise, two years later, when the University publicly launched Light Way: The Campaign for Catholic University, it would have been hard to imagine setting such bold, forward-thinking goals without Carlini as co-chair.

Numerous engineering students count Carlini among their blessings because of the scholarships he and his family have generously and humbly provided. And when players claim victory on Carlini Field, they know how lucky they are that Joe Carlini, who played football for Catholic University, had the passion that moved him and his wife Christine to support the Athletics program that taught him the lasting values of teamwork, respect for others, and leadership.

Carlini was the first in his family to attend college when he left Philadelphia for Catholic University, eventually earning his bachelor of science in mechanical engineering and launching a career in the technology and defense industry. Today, as chairman and CEO of McKean Defense, Carlini is described by professional peers as "a leader whose business experience and open-minded management style creates the environment" for innovation.

Carlini has brought his industry leadership skills to his service on the Board of Trustees for more than a decade. When his three-year term as chairman expired a year ago, he graciously agreed to serve one additional year to help lead the University through the many challenges brought on by the COVID-19 pandemic.

"He's just the best we could have chosen" says University President John Garvey. "He is deeply respected for his wise judgement and careful preparation. He lets you know he's in charge while showing great respect for every person and perspective in the room."

With his wife — a fellow engineering graduate — Joe Carlini makes philanthropy a priority, as the experience of student-athletes, coaches, and fans will demonstrate for decades to come in the University's new home for women's and men's soccer and lacrosse, Carlini Field. Opened in 2019, it has already transformed Athletics Department programs for both Cardinal athletes and their coaches.

Carlini's "deep love for Catholic" has been essential to the success of the University's Campaign, says Scott Rembold, vice president for University Advancement. "He challenges us to achieve our full potential. Whether it's growing enrollment, building the academic enterprise, or enhancing the student experience, he inspires us to ask 'Why can't we?' in serving students, the Church, and the nation."

Among his many titles at Catholic University, Carlini also claims "proud parent." His daughter, Victoria, will become a nurse today as a graduate of the Conway School of Nursing Class of 2021.

"I never tire of coming home to campus," Carlini told viewers while lending his support to a recent virtual Advancement event. The collective response from the Catholic University community is "We never tire of having you, Joe!"

For his example as a successful and conscientious alumnus, businessman, and community leader, and as torchbearer for the ideals of his beloved alma mater — faith, community, generosity, and service — The Catholic University of America is proud to bestow upon Joseph Carlini the degree Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

Tommy Espinoza
Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa

His professional biography describes him as a “prominent architect of Latino community and business development policy and programs.” For many, Tommy Espinoza, president and CEO of Raza Development Fund (RDF), is seen as a bridge builder.

A native of Phoenix, Ariz., Espinoza has dedicated more than 45 years to a career serving Latinos, helping them live in peace and with dignity. He spent his early days working in the city’s low-income neighborhoods, directing Latino youths and families off the treadmill of poverty and into affordable housing. Espinoza served, too, as a member of President Jimmy Carter’s Mexican American Advisory Council.

For the past two decades, Espinoza has led RDF — the organization he co-founded — to become the largest Latino Community Development Financial Institution in the United States, with nearly $500 million in total assets under management. Espinoza pioneered his faith-based approach to community development, then known as the Hope Fund, starting in 1998 and based upon Saint Mother Teresa’s teachings of serving the poor as well as Saint Pope John Paul II’s teachings of respecting the dignity of the human person.

He brought strong business principles to the eventual foundation of RDF, which continues to provide vital capital to Latino-serving organizations nationwide; these organizations have received technical assistance and loans leveraging more than $5 billion in private funding for education, affordable housing, and healthcare projects serving low-income families and individuals.

“The more I get to know Tom, the more I realize what a tremendously positive impact he has had on the Hispanic community throughout the United States,” says University Provost Aaron Dominguez. “He is really one of the great leaders, and he does it with such faith and humility.”

In 2018, Espinoza delivered a eulogy for his dearest friend and compadre of more than 30 years, Arizona Sen. John McCain. National news coverage highlighted the pair’s long friendship and ability to work across partisan lines. McCain had asked his friend to co-chair his first U.S. Senate run in the 1980s. “You know I’m a Democrat,” Espinoza replied. Even so, he agreed to help lead his friend’s campaign.

Espinoza is a member of Catholic University’s School of Arts and Sciences Board of Visitors. He received the NFL Fútbol Americano Hispanic Heritage Leadership Award in 2014 from University alumnus Michael Bidwell, J.D. 1990, owner of the Arizona Cardinals, in recognition of his contributions to the Latino community. In 2005, he was honored with the SRE Secretaría de Relaciones Exteriores (Mexico) Reconocimiento OHTLI, the highest honor given to a person out of Mexico for distinguished work serving the Mexican community.

For pioneering a faith-based approach to community development, his unwavering commitment to affordable housing access and growth, and a lifetime of service supporting the Latino community locally and across America, The Catholic University of America is proud to bestow upon Tommy Espinoza the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

Pierre Manent

Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa

A true philosopher is one who seeks above all else to understand the world around him. For Pierre Manent, that work has meant a lifetime of examining contemporary political life.

Born in Toulouse, France, and raised in a communist household, Manent developed an early fascination with political thought. Though his early schooling took place in a left-wing environment, he was introduced to Catholicism through his teacher and later abandoned communism for the religion.

After graduating from the École Normale Supérieure, he became assistant to the philosopher and political scientist Raymond Aron at the Collège de France. During this time, Manent developed an even deeper interest in political philosophy, eventually co-founding the anti-communist journal Commentaire, to which he remains a regular contributor.

A classical liberal, Manent served as a directeur d'études in the Centre d'études sociologiques et politiques Raymond Aron from 1992 until his retirement in 2014. He is the author of more than 10 books, including his 2020 release, Natural Law and Human Rights: Toward a Recovery of Practical Reason.

He remains one of France's leading voices on political philosophy and the European political scene. Catholic University School of Philosophy Dean John McCarthy describes Manent as “a dispassionate partisan of political life” with a “prudent appreciation of both the good that can only be realized politically and the limits to what even the best political order can hope to accomplish.” His reflections on contemporary political life are always bracing, McCarthy says, because they are informed by his study of the history of political philosophy. “In his readings of the moderns, he joins a rare synthetic gift to great analytical power. Yet he also has many illuminating things to say about Plato, Aristotle, Cicero, and Augustine.”

Manent's work has particular value for Catholics, who can look to his writings for a new perspective on their own political alignments. This kind of value shines through in a 2020 essay for Commentaire (then translated and republished in First Things) in which Manent reflected on the Good Samaritan and the difference between compassion and action.

“Merely human compassion — fellow-feeling — is a passion or a sentiment that, as such, is not capable of being morally qualified,” Manent wrote. “Left to itself, compassion for the victim easily changes into compassion for the torturer. From a sentiment, however, compassion can become a virtue, if it is guided by the cardinal virtues of courage, justice, and prudence. Without this guidance, however, it does more harm than good.”

For his profound and strikingly original exploration of the central questions of Western political thought, efforts to restore the grammar of moral and political action, and bold defense of the classical and Christian concept of liberty under law, The Catholic University of America is proud to bestow upon Pierre Manent the degree Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

Kathleen McChesney, Ph.D.
Doctor of Laws, honoris causa

One does not rise to become the third-highest ranking official in the Federal Bureau of Investigation without intelligence, character, courage, and tenacity. Especially if one is female in a historically male-dominated field like law enforcement.

During a 31-year career in law enforcement, Kathleen McChesney established a reputation for thoroughness and credibility as an investigator, as well as for the ability to communicate hard truths to those in authority. Following her retirement from the FBI as Executive Assistant Director of Law Enforcement Services in 2002, the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) recruited the Jesuit-educated McChesney to serve as the founding head of the USCCB's office of child and youth protection. While establishing that office and new protocols for responding to allegations of abuse, the prevention of abuse, and transparency and accountability for the Catholic Church in the United States, she also continued to be a national voice emphasizing the necessity of listening to victim-survivors and acting on the results of independent and professional investigations of abuse. Through her consulting work and publications, she continues to urge more thorough screening and rigorous selection of clergy and lay people involved in Catholic ministries.

Jesus said, "Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for justice," and in this regard Kathleen McChesney is surely most blessed. From her earliest days in law enforcement as a police officer in King County, Wash., investigating sex crimes and homicides, through her continuing active service as an investigator and advisor, she has remained tireless in her pursuit of justice for victims, accountability for abusers, and the establishment of serious measures that prevent sexual abuse from occurring in any environment. As a consequence, she has earned and kept the trust not only of Church leaders, but also victims and the survivor groups that represent and support them.

An alumna of Gonzaga University and graduate of Washington State University, where she earned a bachelor's degree in police science and administration, McChesney also earned a master's degree in public service from Seattle University and her doctorate in public administration from Golden Gate University.

She is the co-author of Pick Up Your Own Brass: Leadership the FBI Way and Sexual Abuse in the Catholic Church: A Decade of Crisis. She has also been honored with the U.S. President's Meritorious Achievement Award, the Lifetime Achievement Award from the National Center for Women in Policing, the Hildegard von Bingen Woman for the World Award, and the 2020 Laetare Medal from the University of Notre Dame.

For her earnest and unceasing work in the protection of children and vulnerable adults, in rooting out and preventing sexual misconduct, and in advocating for the rights and respect of victims of abuse, The Catholic University of America is proud to bestow upon Kathleen McChesney the degree Doctor of Law, honoris causa.

William Chester Jordan, Ph.D.
Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa

Peer into nearly any corner of medieval history and you're likely to come upon the footprints of William Chester Jordan, the Dayton-Stockton Professor of History at Princeton University. For roughly a half century, he has explored historical realms from the Crusades and English constitutional history to matters of gender, economics, Judaism and, most recently, church-state relations in the 12th through 14th centuries.

Born in the City of Big Shoulders, he became, via Ripon College and a doctorate from Princeton, an expert and much-published scholar, author, and teacher on Europe in the Middle Ages — from Louis IX and the Challenge of the Crusade: A Study in Rulership examining the life of the French king who fought in two Holy Crusades to The Tale of Two Monasteries: Westminster and Saint-Denis in the Thirteenth Century, a study of influential English and French abbey and two men who headed them.

His work The Great Famine: Northern Europe in the Early Fourteenth Century earned him the prestigious Haskins Medal from the Medieval Academy of America. His most recent is Servant of the Crown and Steward of the Church: The Career of Philippe of Cahors.

Of late and in the context of current events, he has lectured on how medieval Europe dealt with an influx of migrant laborers throughout the continent. Though they routinely traveled through the medieval countryside, “Even if some of the same laborers appeared year after year and became somewhat familiar to the inhabitants of any number of local villages, they remained largely outsiders to the communities they served,” says Jordan, who nevertheless looks for signs of the social consequences of the presence of these strangers in medieval rural society.

He has been a member of the teaching faculty at his alma mater since 1973, is a fellow of the American Philosophical Society and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and has served variously as president of the American Catholic Historical Association, the Consortium for the Teaching of the Middle Ages, and the Fellows of the Medieval Academy of America.

Long regarded as a historian at the very top of the field, Professor Jordan is happy to make his many fields of interest approachable to young learners, too, and has edited a four-volume encyclopedia for middle-grade students. He has also generously shared his time and wisdom with Catholic University students, in 2018 giving a lecture on campus and briefly taking over an undergraduate medieval history class.

For a lifetime of scholarship and teaching that continues to inform our present and our future by revealing the lasting consequences of people and events past, The Catholic University of America is proud to bestow upon William Chester Jordan the degree Doctor of Humane letters, honoris causa.

Academic Costume

The history of academic dress reaches back to the 13th century. Academic gowns were prescribed to avoid excess in apparel, although it is believed that gowns were also worn for warmth. Whether the origin of academic dress is ecclesiastical or civilian has never been settled.

The code of academic dress in the United States was adopted in 1895. The gown commonly worn for the bachelor's degree has pointed sleeves (with a slit for the arm). It is designed to be worn closed. The gown for the master's degree has an oblong sleeve, open at the wrist.

The gown for the doctoral degree has bell-shaped open sleeves. All gowns are black with no trimming, except the doctoral, which is trimmed with velvet. The master's and doctoral gowns are so designed that they may be worn open or closed.

Hoods are three feet long for the bachelor's, three and one-half feet for the master's, and four feet for the doctoral degrees. The hood is lined with colors of the institution — gold and white for The Catholic University of America — and is trimmed with the color associated with the academic field of specialization, as follows:

Architecture – Blue Violet
Arts, Letters, and Humanities – White
Business – Drab
Canon Law – Scarlet
Economics – Copper
Education – Light Blue
Engineering – Orange
Fine Arts – Brown
Law – Purple
Library Science – Lemon Yellow
Music – Pink
Nursing – Apricot
Philosophy – Dark Blue
Science – Golden Yellow
Social Work – Citron
Theology – Scarlet

Alma Mater

Alma Mater, thee we hail;
Guardian of truth.
Ours the love that cannot fail,
Sunshine of youth.
Raise thy towers to the skies;
Gifted from above;
Be the light that never dies,
Haven of love.

(Refrain)

Alma Mater, we behold thee;
Sons and daughters true.
Days of sunshine e'er enfold thee, CU, CU.
