Five individual athletes and an entire team were inducted into Catholic University's Athletics Hall of Fame on Feb. 3. The ceremony, hosted by the Alumni Association and the Department of Athletics, featured a Sports Center-style theme. Sean Sullivan, associate vice president and director of Athletics, and Carol Maloney, a well-known D.C.-area sports broadcaster, served as masters of ceremony. More than 250 teammates, coaches, family members, and fans came out to celebrate the alumni athletes at the Edward J. Pryzbyla University Center.

College Sweethearts Become Hall of Famers

Bridget Guetle Wise, B.A. 2003, and Kevin Wise, B.A. 2003, each made history as student athletes. Bridget's volleyball team was the first women's team at Catholic University to make it to an NCAA tournament, while Kevin's basketball team was the first and only team at the University to win a national championship.

Fifteen years after leaving their college days behind, they were back on campus in February to be honored during the Hall of Fame Induction ceremony — with their four children in tow.

"Having the kids (ages 8, 6, 4, and 1) with us was incredible," says Kevin. "For the older ones, it was a chance to see us as more than Mom and Dad. They got to see that we actually played on teams ourselves, and we were pretty good at it."

Bridget and Kevin met as first-year students in Conaty Hall, where they both lived. As athletes they crossed paths at the DuFour Center, their second home. They were soon a couple.

"My college experience exceeded all of my expectations," says Bridget, who was a studio art major. "My teammates are my friends for life. Our coach was so dedicated to us and the program. I had the chance to succeed on the court, while also focusing in the classroom. And I fell in love with D.C. It's such a great place to be a college student."

"And you met the love of your life," adds Kevin. "Of course, that too," says Bridget, with a laugh.

Team Players

Today the Wise family lives in Hoboken, N.J. Kevin works in financial management in Manhattan, while Bridget, who worked in real estate for several years, is a stay-at-home parent. "It's such a great community for young families," she says. "The sidewalks are full of strollers. And it never gets old seeing the Empire State Building lit up at night from across the river."

"When we first heard we were being inducted into the Hall of Fame at the same time, we couldn't believe it," says Kevin. "I was at first a little bit uncomfortable being inducted as an individual," says Bridget, a Capital Athletic Conference (CAC) rookie of the year and three-time first-team All-CAC performer. "For me it has always been about my team."

"The most meaningful part of the experience was that so many of my former teammates came back for the ceremony," she adds. "One even flew in from California. To have that support and validation from them was what mattered most to me."

Being back together with his teammates was equally important to Kevin. "Winning a national championship was an accomplishment and a memory you have with you always. It's a bond you share with a group of people. When we get together and we start talking about the experience, it's like it just happened. That's when it hits that it was such a big deal."

"I was blown away by the induction ceremony, it was so well done," says Bridget. "Any excuse to be back on campus is a good one, but this Hall of Fame weekend was one for the books." — E.N.W.

Cardinals Committed to Service

During her senior year as president of the Green Club, Amanda Finnell, B.A. 2013, helped plant and cultivate a community garden on campus. Just before she graduated, the fruits of that labor were donated to a local food bank. In April, she was back in the garden for another Catholic University service project with her fellow members of the Young Alumni Council (YAC).

The group came together to participate in Cardinal Days of Service by volunteering at the Washington Youth Garden at the Washington Arboretum.

Each April, alumni celebrate Catholic University's founding by honoring its service-oriented mission through volunteering in their communities as part of Cardinal Days of Services.

"It's been exciting for me to reconnect in such a meaningful way with my alma mater by serving on YAC," says Finnell. "It's a great group. Our college days still feel fresh, and it's fun to channel that by helping today's students and serving the University."

In collaboration with the Office of Alumni Relations, the YAC develops engagement opportunities for young alumni from the last five graduating classes. The council serves young alumni in three major areas: career development, service opportunities, and social programs.

Alumna Appointed New Dean of Music, Drama, and Art

Jacqueline Leary-Warsaw is the new dean of the University's Benjamin T. Rome School of Music, Drama, and Art. Leary-Warsaw, who earned her Master of Music degree from the University, was appointed by President Garvey in May and began work June 18. An internationally recognized music educator and classical soprano, Leary-Warsaw is also host of the popular television series In Concert on the EWTN Global Catholic Television Network.

She is a founding member of the University's Catholic Arts Council and has been part of a decades-long collaboration with Catholic University and the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on production of the Annual Christmas Concert for Charity.

On June 5, the University's Board of Trustees approved a plan for academic renewal, (see page 12) which, among many innovative initiatives, joined the departments of drama and art with the Benjamin T. Rome School of Music to create a School of Music, Drama, and Art. The new school brings together all on-campus arts faculty to foster cross-disciplinary efforts and anchor the University's commitment to the arts.

"I am very honored and humbled to join The Catholic University of America community and to be a part of this very historic time as we prepare to launch the new School of Music, Drama, and Art," said Leary-Warsaw. "I am eager to work with the University's world-class performing and fine arts faculty at this time of progress through new artistic pursuits and a renewed commitment to the future of the arts."

She previously served as chair of the Department of Music, artistic director of the Conservatory of Fine and Performing Arts, and associate professor of music at Birmingham-Southern College.

Leary-Warsaw is recognized internationally as a researcher and writer. Her current research is on the debilitating effects of perfectionism in college music students.

As a classical soprano, Leary-Warsaw has performed in opera, oratorio, solo, and chamber recitals throughout the United States, Europe, and South America.

In addition to her degree from Catholic University, Leary-Warsaw earned a Bachelor of Music from University of Louisville, and a Doctor of Musical Arts from Johns Hopkins Peabody Institute.

INTERNSHIP CHALLENGE SURPASSES GOAL

Catholic University's Internship Challenge, launched in fall 2017, invited alumni, parents, and friends to participate. The goal of this joint initiative between the Office of Alumni Relations and the Office of Career Services was to establish 200 new internships for current Catholic University students.

Thanks to you, we reached our goal. Two hundred sixty-one internships have been posted to date for learning opportunities in New York City, Boston, Baltimore, Houston, Nevada, Louisville, and the D.C. metro area, including Capitol Hill. These include places like The New York Times (software engineering); Viacom (design); National Aquarium (exhibit developer, exhibit graphic design, accounting, print digital graphic design, and more); Booz Allen Hamilton (corporate business services); Maryland Blue Crabs (media information); and the Washington Nationals (e-commerce).

But we're not stopping! We look forward to adding more internships this fall.

Internships benefit students in many ways. An internship:

- Introduces a "real-world" perspective on a career. (How does an engineer spend his/her day? How much time is spent at a desk or the field?)
- Allows students to "test drive" a career. (Would I be more successful in marketing or advertising? Am I more comfortable working with patients or in a lab?)
- Gives students the chance to network in a professional setting.
- Affords students access to possible mentors.
- Often includes college credit or certification.
- Introduces students to the field's (or a company's) culture and etiquette. (Are clients addressed by their first name? How are business meetings run? Are jeans appropriate for casual Friday?)
- Gives students the chance to build new skills.
- Often gives students an advantage for future employment.

Do you have good leads on an internship that could make all the difference for a student? Even better, can you offer an internship? Contact us!

UNIVERSITY MOURNS MONSIGNOR THOMAS GREEN

Monsignor Thomas J. Green, the Stephan Kuttner Distinguished Professor of Canon Law, and a priest of the Diocese of Bridgeport, passed away on April 28.

"All of us in the School of Canon Law, and so many others who have known Monsignor Green, pray for his blessed repose and recall his countless contributions to the life of the Church universal and to the School of Canon Law at The Catholic University of America, where he served with great dedication for almost 50 years," said Monsignor Ronny Jenkins, dean. "Monsignor Green was an esteemed colleague of his fellow faculty members, a dear friend to many, and above all a faithful and devoted priest. We miss him greatly."
